Sonwil Distribution Opens Facility in Greater Atlanta Metro Area
Logistics and transportation provider formally establishes operations hub in Southeastern United States

Covington, Georgia – Today Sonwil Distribution—became a fourth generation family-owned and operated logistics solutions firm serving regional, national, and international clients for more than 70 years—announced its expansion into the Southeastern United States through the official opening of a new Greater Atlanta Metro Area warehouse at 16126 Alcovy Road, in Covington, Georgia. This facility will be operated by Samantha A. Wilson, the great-granddaughter of founder James E Wilson and daughter of current CEO, Peter G. Wilson.

“As a rapidly growing business with several trusted and longstanding customer relationships in the Southeastern market, we are excited to operate in one of the most dynamic economic regions in the country,” said Peter Wilson, president and CEO of Sonwil Distribution Center. “Our company works with many of the world’s largest manufacturers across various industry verticals, and we look forward to more fully servicing one of our existing partners in the Atlanta area and Covington specifically.”

Sonwil’s Covington location will include 300,000 sq. ft. of operational, office, and ambient storage space, as well as multiple overhead dock doors and employee parking. This is a registered Food Grade/FDA (2011 FSMA Act) facility and like its other food grade facilities, Sonwil will obtain BRC (British Retail Consortium) certification, an internationally recognized Global storage and distribution standard.

“The Greater Atlanta Metro Area is an extremely strategic location for our operations,” continued Wilson. “As a premier provider of food grade warehousing and distribution our initial focus in this market will be to serve the current regional warehousing and distribution needs of a key long term customer. Eventually, our attention will shift toward the establishment of additional capacity, in order to expand our service offerings to other companies operating, or planning to operate, in and around the wider region.”

Sonwil is nationally headquartered in Buffalo, New York, with additional locations in Elmira, New York; Carlstadt, New Jersey; Reno, Nevada; and Arlington, Texas.

The company provides world-class warehousing, distribution and value added services that free their clients from the operating expenses, capital investment and management issues related to operating their own facilities. Sonwil's scalable solutions help clients optimize their supply chain and reduce operating expenses related to the management and distribution of their inventory by offering logistics to power distribution, technology to increase competitive edge, transportation to optimize the movement of freight, and real estate development to grow your business.
